

≈ PRESS RELEASE ≈
Release: IMMEDIATE
Contact: Matt Greene
mgreenel@bna.com
(703) 341-5767

NEW SIXTH EDITION OF INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE
CLARIFIES THE RAPIDLY CHANGING LANDSCAPE OF INTERNET LAW

Arlington, VA, November 2008—The SIXTH EDITION of INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE, published by BNA Books, a division of BNA, provides the answers to the growing list of questions surrounding Internet businesses and technological advances. From the First Amendment to electronic signatures and contracts, from domain name disputes to advertising regulations, this “field guide” provides a bird’s eye view of the wide range of legal issues permeating the Internet.

INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE, SIXTH EDITION is designed to help you easily locate the legal information you need. Included with the Field Guide is a searchable CD-ROM with the complete contents of the book and full text of key statutes, regulations, and judicial opinions referenced. Each topic is covered in detail and placed in context within the more general areas of the law from which they arise. This treatise provides need-to-know information on current law and helps to identify likely trends for the future and potential areas of liability for yourself and those you advise.

The FIELD GUIDE is a legal reference for attorneys and industry professionals dealing with myriad Internet-related issues, such as protecting a Web site’s content; recognizing trademark rights and avoiding infringement on the rights of others; registering and protecting domain names; uncovering the unique risks of producing content for the Web; ensuring compliance with CAN-SPAM Act and FTC privacy requirements; understanding implications of globally accessible material and the legal jurisdictions that govern lawsuits; understanding the latest developments in Internet taxation; applying First Amendment protections to Internet speech; and more.

(MORE)

INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE, SIXTH EDITION

Page 2-2-2

Jonathan D. Hart is the author of INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE, SIXTH EDITION. He is a member of the law firm of Dow Lohnes PLLC, where he practices in the firm's Media and Information Technologies group in Washington, DC. He specializes in the representation of media and technology companies on a broad range of commercial, transactional, operational, and content matters. Mr. Hart is also on the faculty of the Stanford Professional Publishing Course and Stanford's "Publishing on the Web" program, and has written extensively on media and technology law, particularly for WSJ.com.

BNA is a leading private publisher of news and information products for professionals in law and business. In addition to INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE, BNA's Book Division publishes Intellectual Property Law in Cyberspace; Drafting Patent License Agreements; Drafting Patents for Litigation and Licensing; Electronic and Software Patents; Harmon on Patents: Black-letter Law and Commentary; Intellectual Property Taxation: Transaction and Litigation Issues; International Patent Litigation: A Country-by-Country Analysis; Patent Infringement Remedies; Patent Law and Practice; Patent Prosecution: Law, Practice, and Procedure; Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Laws; Patent, Trademark, and Copyright Regulations; Patents and the Federal Circuit; Pharmaceutical Patent Law; Trademark Dilution: Federal, State, and International Law; Trademark Infringement Remedies; and other titles in legal specialties. For a free BNA Books catalog, call 1-800-960-1220 or send an e-mail request to books@bna.com.

The SIXTH EDITION of INTERNET LAW: A FIELD GUIDE (914 pp Softcover/Order #1740/$195.00 plus tax, shipping, and handling), may be purchased from BNA Books, PO Box 7814, Edison, NJ 08818-7814. Telephone orders: 1-800-960-1220. Fax orders: 1-732-346-1624. The BNA Books Web site, including an online catalog, can be found at bnabooks.com. A 10 percent discount is available on print copies of books when ordering from the Web site. Please note that discounts cannot be combined.

####

Editor: Review copy available on request.

Visit us at: bnabooks.com

This release can be downloaded from bnabooks.com/press

